

NanoTech Gaming Announces Promotion of Aaron Hightower to President

Technical expertise and business skill-set elevate Hightower to this senior position.

LAS VEGAS, September 23, 2015

NanoTech Gaming (OTCPINK: NTGL), creators of the most compelling gaming experiences using the latest technology for land-based casino, consumer and arcade markets, is pleased to announce that VP of Gaming Technology Aaron Hightower has been promoted to President of NanoTech Gaming, effective immediately.

“First of all I would like to compliment Aaron on his diligent performance working on all aspects of NanoTech Gaming,” stated Alan Stone, chairman and CEO of NanoTech Gaming. “His technical experience and high-energy approach to the business as President of NanoTech Gaming.”

Hightower has been involved with NanoTech Gaming for nearly 2 years as its VP of Gaming Technology. He has multiple decades of experience with all aspects of game creation on a breadth of different platforms and development environments. He also understands the business development side of the company, and how to capitalize on bringing new and unique immersive experiences to players worldwide through the use of the most advanced technology and design. This expands the executive management team and better positions the company for growth.

Stephen Riesenberger, Creative Director of NanoTech Gaming, added, “It is truly a pleasure to work alongside Aaron again.

arcade-game company in Milpitas, California. Here in Vegas, Aaron was instrumental in ‘putting the band back together.’ Now we are in the process of bringing new players to the casino industry through the transformative innovation of skill-based and hybrid gambling games. I’m very excited about the Future of Gaming in Nevada, and worldwide!”
